

AFTERSCHOOL TRAINING TOOLKIT

Math Centers

Algebra: Sorting, Representing, and Patterns

These are just two examples of how students might represent the objects that they are sorting. Depending on students' knowledge of representation, encourage them to think of their own ways to represent different quantities. How students decide to represent data will reveal what they are thinking, and what they know about representing information.